

Trump and the Technocrats

Hey everyone, Johnny here. Don't speak news. News we're not supposed to speak about, and yeah, they're starting to try to defund us, and so it's definitely news they don't want us speaking about anymore.

They don't want us speaking at all on this website anymore. So last night I put this up, no more donations via PayPal, because PayPal has begun to hold all the money sent to me for 21 days for no valid reason other than that they can. It says so in user agreement.

They say in rare instances. It says they don't have to define what the rare instance is. They can just hold the money, so they do.

I'm in the process of closing that account, so please don't send anything to me via PayPal. I've taken it off the channel support page, and they're choking us all out one by one. I'll be here as long as the good lord ordains it, and when he says it's over, it's over, and so on the channel support page, if you'd like to support us, we have this portal here, which allows you to donate whichever amount you would like or type in your own custom amount.

Then we have buy me a coffee, the buy me a coffee wish list, which I don't use a lot, but I may start again, and then we have cash app, which are all run by Stripe, which is the alternative to PayPal for purchasing things online, and that's it. So there you go, guys, but at the end of the day, I'm not going to worry about it. I'm just going to continue plunging forward as best I can, and I just won't be getting any more donations via PayPal.

There's almost $40 sitting there now that I can't use, and they say that I can't access until the 25th, I guess, of September, so there you have it. No more PayPal for us, but anyway, moving on to the news at hand. President Trump, well, he hosted Bill Gates at the White House, giving him a platform to spout his evil aspirations for an AI-driven digital dystopia.

So after questioning Operation Warp Speed earlier this week, Trump invited Bill Gates to the White House dinner and nods approvingly as Gates lays out his dystopian vision for AI-controlled medical and food system. Wow, it's all falling into place, guys, all falling into place. Earlier this week, President Trump posted a statement on his TruthSocial account that had his base of MAGA supporters flying high.

Trump appeared to be questioning for the first time the wisdom of Operation Warp Speed and the efficacy of the COVID mRNA injections that it produced, promoted, and distributed en masse. He said the data received from Pfizer showed wonderful results, but that different data was circulating to the public, and he demanded answers as to which data was accurate. His base went wild with enthusiasm.

Trump had finally seen the light on mRNA gene-altering injections that have caused so much harm and misery, and not just in this country, but worldwide. Almost everyone knows of someone who was previously very healthy, and after getting the shot, suffered a stroke, heart attack, neurological disorder, or death, should have put that in there, sudden death. People of all ages and backgrounds.

Some of the headlines I saw in the conservative media were outlandish in their overly optimistic take on the Trump tweet and what it meant. Yes, including Dr. Jane Ruby, controlled opposition gatekeeper that she is, says that President Trump has been duped and poisoned. Not even close.

Guys, Trump is the Antichrist. Trump knew all about this. He knows what they are.

So, some of the headlines, okay, I already covered that part. One headline, typical of the euphoria, claimed Trump goes to war against Big Pharma. Alex Jones chimed in and called the Trump post a total game changer, sending shockwaves throughout the global establishment.

Whoa, hold on to your horses, boys and girls, before your rational exuberance drives you into deception. Like so many of Trump's tweets, they're meant to have shock value. I'm convinced it's purely for entertainment's sake, in some cases, your daily dose of distraction and most others, and should be taken with a grain of salt.

He can come back a day or a week later and say or do something that's totally opposite of the message sent in his earlier comment. He does it all the time, and I'm sure we'll see something of that effect coming up. And it didn't take long for that to happen, with regard to his comment about demanding true data on mRNA COVID shots, just hours after his own HHS secretary, Robert F Kennedy Jr., had delivered a brilliant, brilliant beatdown to Big Pharma captured U.S. senators in a high-profile Senate hearing, all for show in my opinion.

Trump was sitting down at the White House with some of the biggest villains in the Big Pharma takeover of our government apparatus. The truth is, the COVID shots are old history. He may question them, or even end up rebuking them as bad shots, but that doesn't mean he will question or rebuke the AI-powered mRNA gene editing technology in general.

No, he would simply back up a bit and issue a limited hangout. He would say warp speed was a little ahead of its time, the technology hadn't been fully perfected or fine-tuned when it was rolled out during a national emergency, but now the new mRNA is here, and it's much better, he'll say. Much more trustworthy and brilliant, so line up for the shots.

Unreal. That's exactly what he's setting people up for, to get the rest of the people that weren't duped the first time, duped this time, because now it's okay. Now it's going to be just fine, because, you know, I've checked it all out and it's good.

All the experts tell me it's fine. Yeah, just like last time. So the devil speaks through gates.

Gates, sitting front and center next to Melania Trump, still wonder if that's a dude or not, said he wants to see an AI doctor assigned to every human. He spoke glowingly of his plans to unleash more gene editing, applying AI to medicine, even more than it already is, and using a new version of Trump's warp speed for all of it. Trump sat and nodded his head as Gates spoke.

Gates said, I'm in the second phase of my career, giving away money, but I think the thing that ties my first career is innovation, vaccines, gene editing. The president and I are talking about taking American innovation to cure and even eradicate diseases, which whenever they say stuff like this, guys, the exact opposite is true. They're trying to eradicate you.

You're the disease. You're the carbon they want to eliminate. Then you can fast forward to the three-minute mark in the video to hear Gates's comments.

Gates says he's also working on delivering an AI device for farmers, which signals a ramping up of the war on food, replacing real food, call your herds, with ultra-processed bioengineered fake, full of chemical additives and biomanipulated for various traits. I've even saw a video today of them making fake eggs, including the shells. It's unreal.

So you have your answer, folks. Even if Trump ends up swearing off the safety and efficacy of the original COVID shots, that does not mean he has a problem with the larger issue of mRNA gene therapy injections for everything from COVID to cancer to polio to RSV to HIV to take you to transhumanism to make you not gods anymore, taking his signature out of you and putting the beast's signature in you. That's what he's doing.

That's what they're all doing. But they're also hoping that it kills a whole bunch of people too, which it is. It's killing them, disabling them, all kinds of stuff.

Gates said it, Trump nodded. In fact, the FDA has already approved four new mRNA shots for COVID, and you guys want to come to me and tell me that RFK Jr. is a flipping hero for sitting there and putting on a show, a WWE-type theater show in front of the Congress and the world? Are you kidding me? Are you still that naive? Are you still that stupid? Those of you who believe this crap, go back and watch WWE programming. Go away now.

Go watch Netflix. Go ahead and Netflix and chill. Unreal.

It is just trying to fight through this delusion that people have. It's impossible. At the same time, Gates is being lauded at the White House.

He's being accused of genocide and crimes against humanity in a historic case in the Netherlands, and yet Trump has him at the White House dinner. So according to medical researcher Nicholas Hoelscher of the McCullough Foundation, there are 146 pieces of evidence from autopsies to secret contracts being submitted to the Dutch court. This could spark Nuremberg 2.0, Hoelscher wrote in a Facebook post.

Gates' father is a big eugenicist. What did you expect from a eugenicist family? That's when he sits here and talks about curing diseases, and people believe it. It just makes me sick to my stomach that they're that blind and that stupid, that mentally retarded.

So you can watch Hoelscher in this video interview putting Gates' criminality into larger context. Trump is either unaware or doesn't care, which is most likely the case, about any of the sordid history surrounding Bill Gates. Why would he care when he's watching Bibi and the Israelis commit genocide in Gaza? Why would he give two rips about this sordid history about Bill Gates? He doesn't care.

If Trump and Gates have their way, everyone will have their own personal AI doctor, a bot that will instruct them of exactly which new mRNA injection they need to get in order to ward off whatever creeping disease AI determines they might have lurking in their bodies. Trump is on board with all of it. Meanwhile, AI is telling people to kill themselves, and they're doing it.

But oh, we need an AI to be your doctor. Unbelievable. I'll let you read the video.

Because the longer I read it, the more sick to the stomach I get. Not because of Leo and his writing, but because of Trump and what he's doing, and all the people that are buying into it. All the people that are buying into RFK Jr. again, because he's having a WWE Smackdown-type theater in the Senate chambers.

So what? Well, if you want to impress me, you want to impress me and the people that follow me around, which isn't very many. If you want to impress me, pull the shots immediately right now and tell everybody what they are. But they can't do that, and they won't do that.

If they did that, I'd probably fall over, probably faint from shock, right? But they won't. So anyway, unreal. Then one more thing about Trump.

He signs an executive order today renaming the Department of Defense to the Department of War. The President and Defense Secretary Pete Hegseth have been talking about the name change for months. Well, they finally did it via executive order like he does everything else.

So there you have it. The peace president, right? The one who says over and over and over ad nauseum, keeps telling everybody how much he deserves the Nobel Peace Prize. And his criminal friends around the world say the same thing, right? They just echo chamber him.

In the meantime, Department of Defense has become Department of War, as in offensive war, which is what they're about ready to do down in South America, Venezuela in particular. I'm keeping my eyes on it, guys. Just waiting for more solid developments to happen right now.

They're just doing a bunch of exercises, amphibious landing exercises in Puerto Rico. So we'll have to see. It looks like they are preparing for some type of invasion of Venezuela under the pretext of Maduro being a drug kingpin.

No, he's just somebody who doesn't want to bow down to them and do exactly what they tell him to do. So anyway, that will be it for now. And don't forget, don't speak news.com. It's home based for all that we do.

If you'd like to support us, I've already shown you that page, channel support page. It's right here. And the options are becoming more limited as we just talked about.

Best option is buy me a coffee right here. And then we have Rumble, BitChute and Telegram. These are all the places you can find us around the internet.

YouTube, Telegram, Don't Speak Health News on Substack, our BitChute and our Rumble channel. I'm not putting up any more channels because it'll just get taken down again. Also, guys, Telegram.

I don't do private messages on Telegram. I don't know how many times I have to tell you guys this, but yet I keep getting these private message attempts. Please don't send me private messages on Telegram.

I don't do private messages on Telegram because 99.9% of the contacts I get there are robots. And I don't want to waste time chit-chatting with an AI robot. Not only that, but how much research do you think I can get done? How much reading do you think I can get done? How much video production do you think I can get done? How much website maintenance do you think I can get done if I'm chit-chatting with 1,373 different subscribers on Telegram? So please stop contacting me privately on Telegram.

If you want to contact me and drop me a line, do it through the subscribe contact Johnny tab right here. And the email to contact me is right here at dontspeaknews at ProtonMail. And if you want to subscribe, you can do so with this box right here.

But it's not required. I don't get mad if you don't subscribe, okay? Bookmark the website. It's fine by me.

And that will be it for now, guys. God bless. Take care.

Johnny Storm. Don't speak news.
